l'm not a robot

There are plenty of great spots to learn Spanish in Mexico, but many second-language Spanish learners are drawn to the capital, Mexico City, with all it has to offer. So here are some of the best Spanish School Frida Spanish School lives by notion that you need to learn about a culture when taking language Spanish School Frida Spanish School F classes and that's why their courses focus on immersion techniques and casual conversation in places other than the classroom. To start, you'll have to take a placement exam, after which you can begin either standard or intensive classes the following Monday. Standard classes include 20 hours a week of Spanish learning. Learning Spanish is easy in Mexico City | © Dan Gold/ Unsplash Universidad La Salle's Condesa campus you can take part in Spanish classes specially tailored for kids. Registration is just as year-round, and you'll be given a placement exam before enrolling so you know at which level to start. Perhaps one of the best things about this Spanish school is that the groups are super small, so you can get some really dedicated attention from the teachers. Study in Condesa, you can get some really dedicated attention from the teachers and the rare find in terms of Mexico City Spanish language schools—Saturday morning classes. This makes Lengua y Cultura excellent for students who have full-time jobs and don't have midweek flexibility, for example. Plus, their interactive classes are effective. Celcum The Celcum Solar is 'communicate well to understand better' (it has more of a ring to it in Spanish, we promise), and this Zona Rosa-based Spanish school offers classes for all levels; in fact, its courses cover all six levels of the Common European Framework of language exchange to get a feel for not only Spanish, but Mexican culture too. If that weren't enough, it often arranges cultural excursions. Classes are small at Celcum | © Alexis Brown/ Unsplash CEPE, UNAM Widely recommended by Spanish learners, CEPE (Centro de Enseñanza para Extranjeros—Teaching Centre for Foreign Students) at Mexico City's UNAM (said to be the best university in the country) admittedly favours traditional but rigorous teaching methods, but they are imparted by professional, native teachers. Studying Spanish with CEPE would ensure you develop a good grasp of grammar, as well as allowing you to practice speaking in the classroom environment. Modern Language Center Coyoacán's Modern Language Center is a language school that's more adept at adapting its programmes to the needs of the individual learners. Within their classes, they actually use a combination of teaching materials from UNAM (Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México) and Spain, so you won't feel too lost when you go to Madrid after taking a Spanish course here. Become a Culture Tripper! Sign up to our newsletter to save up to $800 on our unique trips. Coyoacán has language classes too | © RociH/ Pixabay About the author Yorkshire-born food, drink and travel writer based out of Mexico, you can find my work at Nat Geo, CNN, Extra Crispy and OZY, amongst other publications. Everything Mexico is my niche, but I also dabble in spewing my unsolicited opinions about teabags and pork pies. Find more of my work at northernlauren.com. If you click on a link in this story, we may earn affiliate revenue. All recommendations have been independently sourced by Culture Trip. But maybe you've discovered that learning a new language isn't quite as easy as the commercials make it appear. It takes more than knowing a few words and memorizing a few key phrases to actually carry on a meaningful conversation. And maybe you're feeling a little worried that learning Spanish as an adult is impossible. At least on a level where you can talk about topics that really matter to you. Let me step in and say, yes, you can. And you're in the right place! Because I was once standing exactly where you are today-a monolingual English-speaking adult struggling to learn Spanish. The first time I held a 10-minute conversation with a local woman in Barcelona-as we waited in line for our coffees-I knew I had crossed a milestone with my Spanish. But how-exactly-do you get to that level? The simple answer? By creating a life-proof language learning system that works for you. A system that helps you sort out what to learn and in what order. Builds in accountability. And sets up lifelong learning habits that endure life's ups and downs. Come, grab your taza de café. I want to show you how to get started on your Spanish journey. SALSA DANCER, WORLD TRAVELER, RED WINE ENTHUSIAST, AND YOUR SPANISH COACH There I was, twenty-three years old, working a soul-crushing "Corporate-America" job and asking myself, "Is this it?" I felt lost, uninspired, and more than ready for a radical change. So that's exactly what I made. In three months, I sold my car. Broke my lease. Packed my life into two suitcases and boarded a plane to Barcelona, Spain.With that one-way ticket, I was off to live with a host family, work as an Au Pair, and pursue a long-time dream of living in a Spanish-speaking country.Now, I had taken a few sentences.Oh, how quickly I found that wasn't the case. I couldn't even carry on a simple conversation at the market. My high school Spanish language-for real this time. I stayed focused, and in just twelve months, I went from a beginner, A1 Spanish level, to a high intermediate, B2 level.But, honestly, something much bigger, more expansive happened that year. Yes, I learned Spanish. But in doing so, I forever changed my identity. I've since sought to immerse myself in various Spanish. But in doing so, I forever changed my identity. I've since sought to immerse myself in various Spanish. But in doing so, I forever changed my identity. I've since sought to immerse myself in various Spanish. treasured relationships. And that's why, a decade later, I have devoted my time to helping adults—like you—unlock the habits and methods you need to confidently carry on a conversation in Spanish too. Because I want you to experience the joy of actually living in Spanish, something that goes far beyond the superficial level of communication. Lessons from a native speaker and lessons from someone who learning HOW to learn Spanish. You are learning Spanish. You are learning HOW to learn Spanish. I'll be the first to say, learning spanish. You are learning a new language is HARD.But...I also know when you build a process of learning Spanish. that endures the seasons and stages of your life.You set yourself up for discovering a different side of yourself you never knew existed. I see it every day: My students and friends binging on that hot new podcast, taking gourmet cooking lessons, reading best-selling novels, or meeting the love of their life...en español! The traditional way of learning a language (you know, how they taught you in high school) is highly ineffective. It fails to bridge the gap between memorizing phrases and expressing your thoughts with ease. Here's what works... Developing habits that are resilient and flexible (So you set yourself up for long-term success—even when life gets complicated and the lessons get hard.) Simplifying the process with step-by-step roadmaps (So you learn things in the right order and aren't left wasting time figuring out what to do next.) Creating immersive and incorporate Spanish into your daily life naturally.) You see, just like you, I had to commit to learning Spanish from the ground up. And I, too, struggled at times. But I'm here because I want to show you that there is a simpler (more enjoyable) way to do it. Sure, my travels and "focused sprints" in Spanish-speaking cultures helped amplify my Spanish-speaking journey. But I also found how invaluable everyday experiences are, too. Like reading, writing, music, listening, speaking, and purposeful courses. Maybe the most important thing I learned was about personal discipline and what's realistic when committing to learning a language. (Hint: flexibility is key!) This is why I want to share with you the exact strategies that took my Spanish to the advanced level I had always dreamed of—so you can have this experience too.(And, I promise, you won't have to buy a one-way ticket to anywhere.) If you are just starting—or think there may be gaps in your foundational skills—my FREE Spanish Starter Kit will help you. Reduce the overwhelm and build a structured framework that will take you to whatever level you want to go. If you already 'speak some Spanish' but your progress is stalling, my FREE 12-Step Intermediate Guide was made for you. Learn twelve proven strategies to push past the intermediate plateau and take your Spanish to the next level. Let's start your journey today! Both plans are free and include 40+ minutes of videos, workbooks, and ready-toimplement tips. La Mariposa—or butterfly—is my Spanish nickname. It was given to me by friends during my transformational year in Barcelona. The name fits me, too. My love affair with the Spanish language has allowed me to fly all over the world. I've immersed myself in so many different Spanish cultures—from Madrid to Mexico City.I've opened myself up to 560 million more people and their incredibly rich cultures that, before, I could only get a glimpse of. Like a butterfly, I've been through a complete metamorphosis. I didn't just learn an enchanting new language; I unlocked a new way to view and experience the world. I want you to spread your wings too! I FINALLY UNDERSTAND IT!"I've seen this topic a million times before, but it never really clicked in my brain until I heard Dominique explain it. Now, I can actually use it in my Spanish because I finally understand it." Dani PaigeAlberta, Canada And, it feels exciting because you can feel your wings start to spread. You can see that conversational confidence is possible, even if you've never learned a language learner to another, I genuinely want you to experience the delight of mastering this enchanting language. I did it. I know you can too.Un abrazo, Dominique General Spanish courses are for adults who want to improve their speaking, listening, reading, and writing skills in Spanish. Most general Spanish courses are for adults age 16 and up. 2 - 48 week courses available. Most courses average 30 classes per week. It's never too late to learn Spanish, and people of all ages have unique language-learning strengths, even adults. However, kids aged 3-6 excel at intuitive language learning and will pick up Spanish through play and mimic accents with ease. The good news is that you don't need to be a language specialist to expose your child to Spanish—you just have to be consistent. The early childhood years are also ideal because you have a strong influence on your child's environment and routines, making it easier to incorporate Spanish into their day. Once your child enters grade school, they start to have their own lives with friends, activities, and even homework, making it harder for you to introduce new habits. You're more likely to be present with your child before age six, so establishing good habits early can make continuing into grade school easier. Now that you understand how an early start can set your kids on the path to bilingualism. This concept will guide you in determining the level of interaction your kids need in Spanish. 3. Know that Spanish. 3. Know that Spanish is your child—from school to TV he level of interaction your kids need in Spanish. 3. Know that Spanish is your child—from school to TV he level of interaction your kids need in Spanish. to playground chatter. But what about Spanish? It's likely the minority language in your household and in the world around you, and that's why you need to be extra intentional about integrating Spanish at home. An hour of mommy-and-me Spanish each week is fun, but it's not enough to make your child truly bilingual. So, how do you create an environment where Spanish sticks? That might mean speaking more Spanish at home in the early years or finding creative ways to immerse your child in the language. Either way, you'll need to tap into something young kids naturally love: routines. 4. Create routines around Spanish. If you're the parent of a young child or have worked with young children before, you probably already know how much routines can make or break your day. Even for families with a Spanish-speaking parent or grandparent, if you don't have a routine, there is no guarantee that your child's exposure to Spanish. But, if you get in the habit of having your child do a short Spanish activity just before abuela arrives and always remember to greet her in Spanish when she visits, that may be enough to set the stage for some beautiful intergenerational interaction. The suggestions that follow take a little planning at first, but adding a few of these into your schedule will boost the time your children spend immersed in Spanish-and make your day run a little more smoothly, too. Read on for some Spanish to help your gchildren make smooth transitions--while immersing them in Spanish. Using music is a powerful way to help your child through transitions throughout the day-according to research and savvy parents. What if a hyper-repetitive and super-peppy kid's song each time you transition from one activity to the next is not your thing? I hear you - nonstop kids' songs can drive any parent a little nuts! It's also completely ok to add a few authentic Spanish songs that you feel like singing along with to your transitions as well. Your child will grow up knowing you love to listen to music in Spanish, too--and that's a powerful lessons...You'll definitely want to piggyback Spanish onto your child's reading routine. Whether your child is reading already or still in the 'listening' stages, you're probably already prioritizing a reading routine; now it's simply time to add Spanish. Here are a few suggestions: If you are reading aloud to your child, be sure to balance English reading. For example, you could read one short book in English and one in Spanish. encourage a set reading time, such as just before bed. So, if your child reads 20 minutes each evening in your bilingual family, you could have them start with 10 minutes of Spanish. Consider picking up a few great bilingual books like the ones Juliana Russell creates for kids. Parallel readers in both English and Spanish can be really handy if your child is not quite ready to read only in Spanish. Bilingual books in English and Spanish will allow your child to read, understand, and absorb vocabulary without feeling lost. And now, for a habit kids tend to slip into all too effortlessly, which happens to be a huge language learning opportunity. In your bilingual family, make screen time en español. Does your child watch a little TV or play the odd learning game on your phone or tablet? If so, why not make that Spanish time?You've probably already heard that learning Apps and educational games are more active than TV. So consider choosing a Spanish learning Apps for your child to play during 'screen time.' When the kids watch TV, consider starting out with Spanish language learning-based shows. These are easy to follow because there is quite a bit of visual information and a focus on songs and vocabulary. If you take a minute and browse YouTube and Netflix, you'll find Spanish versions of shows like Little Baby Bum, where your kids can learn nursery rhymes and songs. Or You can tune into a learning series like Cleo y Cuguín or Word Party, so your child can develop their problem-solving and learn new concepts--in Spanish. As your children get into the habit of watching longer and longer shows in Spanish. family-friendly, authentic Mexican films like El Jeremías you can find a description in this post about Mexican films for adult Spanish, establishing this habit early on is key. Focused screen time in Spanish will give you a nearly effortless opportunity to immerse them in the language. Routines, when consistent, are among the easiest and simplest ways to ensure repeated exposure. They're also the most powerful.Still, your Spanish routine experiences for a bit of extra fun. Located on the edge of the Condesa and Roma neighborhoods, Lengua y Cultura is a highly respected school that has been around for over a decade. Although their classrooms feel a bit disjointed between the two buildings, their structured curriculum and knowledgeable teachers make up for the disconnect. Lengua y Cultura places students based on their placement exams. You take them online before joining a course. In addition to their regular group and private offerings, you can also take private lessons to prepare for example, you can stop by the lively Roma neighborhood for a Thursday night conversation Meetup and local beer tasting. Or you can join one of their Spanish-language walking tours on Friday nights for insights from a local into nightlife, dining, shopping, and art galleries. School #8: Spanish in the City Language SchoolIf you need a stimulating learning environment, the chance to move around during the day, and novelty, this might be a school to consider.Spanish in the City teaches students entirely in local venues--never in the classroom. Each morning begins with structured grammar session, you'll walk to a new museum, or historical site where you can apply what you've learned through conversation. The teachers create all course materials, and the maximum class size is limited to 5 students. There are options for group and private lessons. Remember to take your learning style into account when considering this school. F learning Spanish in a social setting can be a distraction. If you need a quiet learning setting or feel uncomfortable finding and showing up to a new location daily, you might prefer to explore other options. School #9: Spanish Mode qualified teachers teach all the classes, so you know who is teaching your class beforehand. This lets you ask questions about who is the right Spanish teacher for you. You can schedule your in-person classes at cafés or bookstores like Péndulo. Reviews by students speak to the high quality of instruction, the skill of both teachers at making key Spanish concepts simple to understand, and they tailor lessons to the level, interests, and goals of the learners. The small team size means you'll also want to reach out ahead of time to make sure you can book a Spanish lesson when you are in Condesa. School #10: ABC SpanishLocated in the exciting Roma Norte neighborhood, ABC Spanish School selects and trains its teachers in its signature student-centered approach. Their teaching methodology combines a carefully structured grammatical progression and applies that knowledge in student-led conversations. According to student reviews, the result is a strong foundation, the ability to structure your ideas, be flexible, and find confidence in communication.ABC Spanish has options for professionals.Some student reviews mentioned that their private lessons took place in a cafe in Condesa, so be sure to check in with the team for details about where the program you're interested in will take place. School #11: Frida Language School Frida Language School is an option for laid-back students who want a simple, budget-friendly, youth-hostel-like learning experience in Mexico City. This school definitely favors a younger crowd and offers opportunities to meet with other students from around the world. Group courses are on the larger end-- limited to 12 students maximum, and there is a mandatory initial level test to place you at the right level when you join. If you stay on, you'll take a new evaluation every two weeks that will help determine your placement in subsequent classes. For some, the process of 'passing into the next level' can seem daunting, for example, if others progress while you stay 'behind.'School #12: Fluenz Immersion Mexico, but some people swear by the Fluenz brand. For example? Newsweek: "Forget learning Spanish in some non-descript classroom. Fluenz offers a grown-up, luxury shopping and some of the most expensive real estate in the city. Each morning, after breakfast, your personal coach will meet you and walk you to your Spanish session. Afternoons are all about culture and visiting the City. Evenings? Think Michelin-starred dining, talks by local cultural figures (with English subtitles), and private nighttime visits to the National Museum of Anthropology. As you can imagine, the luxury experience comes with a luxury price tag. But for some it's exactly what they're looking for.FAQ: from a Mexico City aficionada.Where's the best place to stay in Mexico City?You'll notice that many of the most charming neighborhoods. These are two of my favorite areas to stay, spend time in, and wander in and out of galleries and shops:#1. Roma Norte, known as the "barrio mágico" (the magical neighborhood), has an inviting, European ambiance and features neoclassical mansions turned museums, boutique hotels, chic restaurants, and inspiring street art.#2. Condesa offers a dynamic blend of hip eateries, trendy art galleries, shaded green spaces, and artisan boutiques, creating a neighborhood for strolling and exploring. What schools offer intensive Spanish courses in Mexico City? If you are looking for intensive spanish courses in Mexico City? If you are looking for intensive spanish courses in Mexico City? If you are looking for intensive spanish courses in Mexico City? If you are looking for intensive spanish courses in Mexico City? If you are looking for intensive spanish courses in Mexico City? your speaking. Most importantly, expect more hours per day and week. If you are going full-on immersion, I recommend about 2-3 hours in the morning, for example, a lunch break, then another block in the afternoon. And you'll want courses that run the full week: Monday through Fiday. You might see schedules that look like 9 to 11:30 in the morning, for example, a lunch break, then another block in the afternoon. and perhaps 1 to 3 in the afternoon. Doing more than four to five hours a day is a real challenge--and may not be your best option!What are some solid Intensive Spanish immersion over 4-6 weeks. Universidad La Salle - Offers 25 hours per week in a structured academic setting (2-4 weeks). Walk Spanish - A mix of group + individual classes, totaling 25-30 hours per week. Perhaps not as prestigious as the first two examples, but it offers the possibility of actually being on the move for part of the time. intensive courses on my way to Spanish fluency. But should you try one? That depends. When to consider an intensive Spanish as a nurse or other medical professional or are considering teaching). You have a once-in-a-lifetime chance to study in Mexico and want full immersion. When to consider a less intensive Spanish Immersion: Intensive programs aren't the best for every situation. Here are some cases where you'd want a hybrid approach to your immersion programs aren't the best for every situation. cultural immersion, where learning happens in cafes, markets, and conversations. You're working remotely and taking Spanish classes? Absolutely. I recommend you do at least 2 hours a day, preferably in the morning between 9 AM and noon when your brain is fresh, Monday through Friday.Personally, I've enjoyed intensive and more informal kinds of Spanish learning (outside of class) matters.Whether I'm taking a class or not. I always try to stay curious and inquisitive about what I'm seeing and hearing around me: I keep a note open on my phone to jot things for me and explain things for me and explain things to me so that I truly understand them. I don't think you can truly learn Spanish on a deep level without engaging with it- even when you're not 'officially taking a course or program.'I hope you'll give yourself permission to choose what's right for you these days. Is Spanish Immersion in Mexico City kid-friendly? Mexico City can be great fun with the family. But If you're traveling with children, you may struggle to find short immersion programs that cater just to them. experience. This gives children opportunities to be immersed in local schools, hang out on the playground, or join local activities. For more information on how to plan an extended family immersion class for them and ar intellectually stimulating class for you!Your takeaways on Spanish Immersion in Mexico City a good place to learn Spanish? The resounding answer is sí. You'll fall in love with its neighborhoods, the international vibe, the friendly people, and the energetic way they speak Spanish. And don't even get me started on the food! You won't find better Spanish schools anywhere in the world. An immersion program- where you hone in on your Spanish for hours a day over several weeks - can rev up your Spanish proficiency. Find the right school for you, spend a few weeks in Mexico City, and you just might leave with confidence and speaking ability you never knew you could achieve. Look for a Spanish school that fits your learning style and offers activities you'll love. This is your chance to break out of textbook learning and discover Spanish in a city so culturally rich that you won't be able to soak it all in—no matter how many trips you take. Promise me you'll stop for a café on a tree-lined street in Condesa. Then take a stroll through Parque México—watch the dog walkers training their pups, see kids lacing up their rollerblades before gliding off to play, and pop over to join one of the group bachata and salsa classes. Let real-life Mexico City will start to feel like home.Last updated: March 3rd, 2025More Blog Posts Handpicked Just For You!Enjoyed this post? Here are a few more you might like. Dear students: WE ARE OPEN AS NORMAL! Our Spanish school in Mexico City offers language courses all year long starting every Monday. We have hosted students from all over the world for many years, willing to learn Spanish either as beginners, intermediate or advanced in one of the worlds most vibrant cities. Students from all nationalities are welcome to learn Spanish in Mexico City. We use a different methodology in the sense that lessons are complete immersion and out of the classroom, so you will have class in museums, parks, markets, cafeterias, art galleries and Aztec ruins! During the class you will learn grammar, conversation, reading and writing. Each Monday we meet at a meeting point in Polanco or Roma area. Most of our lessons take place in Polanco, colonias Roma and Condesa but class is also held at other locations and attractions. Our main meeting points are Polanco, Roma and Condesa since we consider them the most vibrant and safest parts of Mexico City and also the ones with the best location. Our language courses are suited for different needs since we have from a basic 4 hour per day course in a group to private lessons, it all depends on the necessities of our students. Come and learn Spanish in Mexico City, a vibrant city recognized lately as one of the top destinations in the world, a city of amazing food, people, culture and also very safe. Our teachers are selected in a rigorous screening process to meet the highest standards; furthermore, students will receive a certificate upon completion of their language course. Share — copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format for any purpose, even commercially. Adapt — remix, transform, and build upon the material for any purpose, even commercially. The licenser cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the licenser cannot revoke the lic indicate if changes were made . You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use. ShareAlike — If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original. No additional restrictions — You may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits. You do not have to comply with the license for elements of the material in the public domain or where your use is permitted by an applicable exception or limitation. No warranties are given. The license may not give you all of the permissions necessary for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy, or moral rights may limit how you use the material. Take a well-structured lesson in an appropriate classroom setting, then take a well-structured lesson in an appropriate classroom setting. The take a well-structured lesson in an appropriate classroom setting, then take a well-structured lesson in an appropriate classroom setting. distractions at a park or café, or the heat and rain, as well as street vendors and air pollution. Learn how to order at restaurants, bars, cafés; give directions to your taxi/Uber driver, use public transport, and navigate the city in a safe, comfortable way. Practice your speaking skills right away! COURSE Immersive Approach: Program based on real-life situations. Get by in Spanish, Socialize, Work and do business in Lat Am. Cultural activities: Guided visits to Museums, Art galleries, Places of Historic and Cultural interest, walking city tours. Hands-on Spanish learning: Take a cooking class, a dancing lesson, a boat tour, a street food tour and practice with locals. Language exchange: Meet up with locals, other students, and Spanish language teachers at a restaurant/bar, practice your Spanish, do networking, make friends. Classroom and outdoors learning: Take structured Spanish lessons in a safe, appropriate space at our school, then go out to the real world and put your knowledge into practice, become conversational-fluent in a very short time. Flexible program: Switch from group classes to private or combine both types of lessons at your best convenience, take a break, resume, and still use our discount system. SIGN UP TO LEARN Join our in-person conversational Spanish classes at our school in Condesa, or take online lessons. Accredited native Spanish speakers from Latin America! Mexico City is one of the best places in the country to learn Spanish. Unlike popular tourist locations like San Miguel de Allende or Puerto Vallarta, the foreign community is very much integrated into the city and not insular, and locals expect you to take a stab at the local language — you won't automatically be spoken to in English or be brought an English menu. The city is packed with ways to expand your language skills (museums, protests, everyday interactions), and yet there are enough chilangos that speak English you can also always find someone to help if you are in a bind. So if you decide to take Spanish classes in CDMX, the question is, where should you go? There are a lot of factors to consider when you are making the choice of what language school to go to in Mexico City. You want to think about your budget constraints. Do you have a full work schedule? Are you a night owl who's not likely to show up for an 8am Spanish class? Are you willing to go to class every day for six weeks of your time in Mexico? Most language schools are located in central tourist neighborhoods — Roma, Condesa, Polanco, and Coyoacan, but homestays can be farther outside of the city center. If you want to be able to walk to Spanish level. Do you need the very basics, including grammar and basic sentence structure? Or are you advanced enough that a personal tutor who can cater to your needs would be better than group classes? I received a lot of feedback from folks who have taken language schools and used private tutors in Mexico City and the following are the options I've found people like the best. CEPE of UNAM - Polanco The general consensus seems to be that the UNAM classes are the most structured and most serious of the options on this list. These are college-level classes that often include students learning Spanish for business purposes that come from language backgrounds opposite to that of Spanish — Chinese, Japanese, and Russian. Most of the former students I talked to liked the structured nature of the classes — the fact that there were exams and homework made them take their work more seriously, and the professional and well trained. place in a class and pay for that and registration in advance which will run you around 450usd. I had one person tell me they felt they were placed in a class that was actually too basic for their level. After finishing a basic course that same student was told by his teacher that he should skip ahead a few levels but the school has a strict classes-in-row policy when it comes to the course levels and in order to skip he would have had to pay for registration and the entrance exam all over again so he chose not to. After the pre-registration fees, the cost of the Basic level (which is 90 hours of instruction) is 550usd, and the cost of the Intermediate or Superior level (which is 78 hours of instruction each) is $450usd. So, not cheap, but there are eight levels in total and you can take 2 complete courses in a semester or complete 5 levels in one year. One former student told me that these classes were difficult to take if you have a full-time job (classes are 6 or 16-week courses, Monday to Friday every morning for either 3hrs for beginners or 2.5hrs for advanced classes). The most central campus is in Polanco and there are other classes held in the Ciudad Universitario in the south of the city (UNAM's campus). Universidad la Salle - Condesa and, like CEPE, is part of a larger university system. The classes are 6 weeks online in the afternoon three times a week for $160usd (appx) or morning in-person classes for 4 weeks, Monday to Friday for $310usd (appx). The person I talked to said that the classes were small and intimate (4 or 5 students) and he felt like that was one of the reasons he got so much out of the course. Classes are so small in fact, if there aren't enough students who want to take your level at the same time the university will be unable to offer you the class, and other former students commented that they were only able to take basic Spanish classes there and then had to transfer to UNAM for higher level classes. International House - Condesa The International House is more similar to private language schools that you will find across Latin America and less like the university settings of the classes and the immersion of slightly less structured but much more culturally relevant Spanish lessons. One student told me it was the school where he felt he learned the most. Classes range from $155 to $230 a week depending on how long you study (the longer you sign up the cheaper the weekly cost). They also offer (at an additional cost) private lessons for learning business Spanish, and exam prep course for the DELE exam, and cultural activities each afternoon. You can arrange a homestay with one of their families, but just remember the website says families live from 30-45 minutes away by public transportation so this might mean you're pretty far from the city center. Lengua Y Cultura - Condesa Students I got feedback from seem to particularly like Lengua y Cultura's atmosphere. They said that teachers were friendly and accommodating and most referenced the activities that they were able to take part in outside of the classroom — trips to the market, riding on the subway, and other excursions, as well as the staff's willingness to help them with the regular problems of traveling. The school also has some unique options that I like like Spanish classes on Saturdays from 9 am to 1 pm, they offer a super intensive course that combines group classes and private instruction for $199 - sort of a quick and dirty option for people that don't have much time and want to get the max they can in a short period. Regular classes are 3 hours (at different times during the day) Monday to Friday for $130-$585. They also have private tutors? Some people find them endlessly more flexible and accommodating as you can choose the time, topic, and style of classes that fit with your learning style and lifestyle. Other folks have said that the structure of group classes and actually having to show up and be present was what they needed to really commit to classes. Private tutors are generally more expensive but you can choose as many or as few hours as you want in a week and most teachers offer classes via zoom or in person so you can fit them into your schedule. If you are tempted to get a private tutor you might want to wait until your Spanish level is high enough that you are tempted to get a private tutor you might want to wait until your schedule. If you are tempted to get a private tutor you might want to wait until your schedule. learners, myself included, it was important to get a solid, academic foundation in Spanish first in order to start excelling in the language. There are a few that were recommended to me: Daniel Torres (+52 56 11 67 86 05), Ernesto Alanis (+52 55 20 61 6969), and Leti Aparicio. Have you taken classes somewhere you loved? Somewhere you hated? Send me a message and tell me about it. Coming to Mexico City? Want some insight into Renting and tell me about it. Coming to one study, there are 460M native Spanish speakers, expanding over the seven continents, not including people who speak Spanish as a second language. Like most other prominent European language of 21 countries spanning over three continents. It's an exciting and fun language to learn. And knowing how to speak it becomes even more important if you're in Mexico - the country with the highest number of Spanish speakers. Apart from its beautiful beaches and rich culture, Mexico is also known to provide the best Spanish programs worldwide. If you're interested in learning Spanish in Mexico, keep reading: The best Spanish tutors availableLet's goLearn Spanish From Native Speakers There are many benefits of studying Spanish in Mexico such as they arguably have some of the best Spanish), the highest Spanish population in the world, which gives you a chance to test what you learn at the program, etc. (Source: Pixabay) As part of an intensive Spanish learning program in Mexico, the chances are that you'll be taught by a native Spanish speaker - both Spain Spanish and Mexican Spanish. The authenticity of the courses will give you a valuable opportunity to start understanding the intricate colloquialisms and accents of the language. Additionally communicating with a native-speaking teacher or friend will help you learn Mexican proverbs, sayings, slang, and other things you wouldn't experience elsewhere. Remember that taking Spanish language programs in Mexico will enable you to immerse yourself in the language, both within the class and outside. They will teach you grammar and other theoretical outlooks of the language; you will also get to use it in your daily activities whilst visiting museums, volunteering, excursions, and more. In Mexico, your Spanish-learning efforts won't just be restricted to school! In fact, you can practice and test it every day by: Asking for directions Ordering food Hailing a cab Reading road signs Vamos a empezar a aprender! Didn't understand that? No worries, after taking courses from one of the best Spanish Programs in Mexico, you'll learn how to say this and a lot more. 5 Best Spanish language schools, a lot of native speakers (for both Mexican Spanish and Spain Spanish), the highest Spanish population in the world, which gives you a chance to test what you learn at the program, etc. (Source: Pixabay) Alt-test: A Spanish two-way street and stop sign stands in front of a photogenic rustic white wall. If you study Spanish in Mexico, you can easily translated and stop sign stands in front of a photogenic rustic white wall. what the sign means. Reading signs is also a great way to practice the language Meta-description: Unlike studying Spanish in a non-speaking country, Mexico offers you both the best Spanish, read road signs and even shop on your own (Source: with other people in Spanish in a non-speaking country, Mexico offers you both the best Spanish in a non-speaking country of the studying Spanish in a non-speaking country. Unsplash) Mexico is one of the best places in the world for those studying Spanish. Whether you intend to learn Mexico has Spanish, Mexico has Spanish and intriguing lessons. Without further ado, here are five authentic Spanish language programs in Mexico that you should consider: Instituto Cultural Oaxaca If you're searching for the best Spanish language schools in Mexico that offers a wide variety of learning options, flexibility, and convenience, your search stops with Instituto Cultural Oaxaca (ICO). The school offers programs that will allow you to study Spanish engagingly. Whether you want a private Spanish class, Tertulias (a unior of people frequently meeting to discuss current affairs or another particular subject), or Club de Lectura en Español, the ICO is where you need to go! In addition to that, with ICO's Spanish programs, you'll be able to learn Español at your pace. Plus, they can also devise a unique curriculum that meets your requirements. Additionally, the school has specific programs to cater to business, academic, and medical professionals - and of course, children. Apart from that, the ICO can also arrange homestays for you to make studying Spanish a fun experience. Moreover, they host several cultural workshops around the year, including: Alebrije making Merengue Salsa dancing These and other events at ICO will enable you to practice your Spanish and have a ball of a time, especially if you're learning Mexican Spanish! Dara Idiomas Dara 2012, this Spanish language learning school provides students with various programs to choose from. These programs are academically challenging and provide customized learning school that caters better to people in business. So, if you're learning Spanish for your career goals, take a spanish online course or in person at Dara Idiomas. Therefore, their programs focus on developing corporate skills in Spanish, such as: Report writing Negotiation Corporate skills in Spanish, such as: Report writing Negotiation Corporate communication Conflict resolution However, not everyone can apply and get in. To become a part of Dara Idiomas Spanish lessons, you'll have to first appear for the placement exam. Meanwhile, the best thing about this school is that it has a faculty of certified native of Puebla If you're serious about learning Spanish in Mexico, choose a program at the Spanish Institute of Puebla - one of the best places to study Spanish! Whether you're a native speaker or a beginner, the institute provides eight levels of intensive Spanish immersion programs that you can take to learn the language and its culture. Four areas are essential when learning any language: reading, speaking, writing, and listening. SIP programs work on all four with a particular focus on conversation - after all, what good is learning a language it you can't even communicate in it? Most of their Spanish learning to you to take many levels simultaneously or one at a time. Furthermore, for your convenience and to ensure optimum learning, they conduct placement exams to see which level is best for you. Apart from studying Spanish, the school also offers other activities where you can test your speaking skills. These include: Cultural excursions Sports adventures Dance classes Cooking classes Volunteering at orphanages Tierras Mayas Spanish Language School The Tierras Mayas Spanish language School provides private, intensive, and group Spanish programs to people of all ages and homestays. Besides competitive Spanish learning programs, the school also offers a beautiful view of the mountains and the city. Additionally, it provides learning. And, unlike most language schools, it is run and owned by Mexican instructors. The teachers at the Tierras Mayas use a different approach that combines Spanish conversation and grammar classes in a positive and friendly environment. It also organizes volunteer working opportunities for its students, like most Spanish language schools in Mexico. Plus, the facilities on offer at the Tierras Mayas school include: A communal kitchen A library A cinema Free coffee Internet access Also, the school arranges group lunches once a week. In short, Spanish programs at Tierras Mayas are an intimate affair; they focus on community involvement and fun while they spread the beautiful language. Escuela Falcon Studying Spanish can be a lot of fun in Mexico as the country is full of native Spanish speakers. Apart from taking Spanish studies and visit a nearby museum or go on a trip, you'll still be learning as you have to use your Spanish to communicate and understand signs (Source: Pixabay) Whether you are a beginner, intermediate, or advanced Spanish learner, you'll always find a Spanish learner, you'll always find a Spanish program catering specifically to your needs at the Escuela Falcon. Students are free to decide what Spanish learner, you'll always find a Spanish program catering specifically to your needs at the Escuela Falcon. classes have a duration of 55-minutes per day and can be taken in a small group or private lessons. Furthermore, their programs include: Culture and history presentations Spanish placement exams (to see which student fits what level) Comprehensive orientations City tours Language exchange programs with native Spanish speakers Exciting daily activities Frequent trips to museums and restaurants Apart from that, the Spanish programs at the Escuela Falcon are shaped according to a variety of themes: conversation, grammar, cooking, painting, Latin film, Mexican culture, and medical terminology, and more. and includes visits to museums, craft making, kite making, and excursions. Learning How To Speak Spanish In Mexico Wherever you choose to take Spanish programs in Mexico, fun is guaranteed! No matter your age, language level, and learning goals, Spanish language programs in Mexico are offered in a group and individualized manner to provide added attention and conversational practice. Most lessons are budget-friendly and conducive to healthy learning. You'll be able to explore Mexico's rich culture and practice your Spanish daily on food stands, grocery markets, shopping malls, etc. However, with the pandemic, it may be challenging to enroll in one of these schools. And if you find yourself in this position, sign up with Superprof Superprof offers you access to the best private Spanish tutors in Mexico. Visit the site and find one who teaches according to your time, budget, and goals! San Luis Potosí 26, Chimalistac, Álvaro Obregón, México City, Mexico | +1 · 888 · 808 · 1242 | CONTACT