New york times summer academy

Summer academies are intense, subject-specific summer camps for high school students. You learn from college professors, industry professionals, and sometimes even celebrities in your field. You can think of them as a taste of college-level learning but packed with activities, guest speakers, and field trips to keep things interesting. In the NYTimes Summer Academy, this translates to incredible opportunities. You will spend your summer in the heart of New York City, surrounded by aspiring journalists and media enthusiasts just like you. You'll be challenged and inspired by world-class instructors, get hands-on experience with cutting-edge media tools, and even delve into The New York Times's inner workings. This article will cover everything you need to know about applying for and succeeding in the NYTimes summer program.Overview of the New York Times Summer AcademyThere's no denying that the idea of attending an "academy" or "school" during your summer break might not sound like the most exciting prospect. However, the New York Times NYC Summer Academy is far from your typical classroom experience. This multidisciplinary NYTimes summer program is designed to push you out of your comfort zone and ignite your passions through diverse exploration beyond the four walls of a traditional school setting.Imagine spending your summer as an intern at the New York Times, gaining hands-on experience and guidance from journalists, other professionals from various industries. Alumni praise the program for helping them develop valuable journalism skills, such as building relationships and conducting interviews. They also appreciate the unique opportunity to explore New York City while aspiring to become great journalists themselves.What Should You Get into the New York Times Summer Academy?What sets the NYC Summer Academy apart is its dynamic, open-minded vibe and flexible approach. Students have described it as "the best summer of their life," especially if the program aligns with their passions, like finance and economics. Imagine visiting Goldman Sachs, interacting with recruiters and analysts, and making invaluable connections that could shape your future career path.The New York Times summer program courses tackle a wide range of topics, from journalism, media, and technology to arts, culture, sports, fashion, and business, ensuring there's something to pique every high school student's interest. Through the academy's practical approach, you'll discover your true passions and develop confidence in areas like conducting interviews on the vibrant streets of New York City.NYTimes Summer Camp 2024If you are looking for a prestigious New York Times internship, consider the NYT Camp in 2024. The academy will offer two-week programs throughout June and July, and you can enroll in multiple terms if you wish. The 2024 program is open to high school students in grades 10-12 and graduating seniors (based on the grade you'll enter in Fall 2024). Like most high school New York Times internships, the program requires you to be at least 15 years old by the first day of your term. NYT Summer Academy is held in the bustling cities of New York and Washington, D.C. Specifically, the program takes place at the iconic New York Times Building located in Midtown Manhattan, which is only one block away from the world-famous Times Square. Additionally, the program is hosted at distinguished universities throughout the city.NewYork Times Summer Academy: Eligibility and Application ProcessTo be considered for the prestigious NYT Summer Academy, you must meet the following eligibility criteria:Enrollment RequirementsThe NYT Summer program accepts applications from high school students who are rising sophomores, juniors, seniors, and graduating seniors. Applicants must be between the ages of 15 and 18 as of the first day of their chosen program term.Application ComponentsAll prospective students new to the Summer class at NYT Academy must complete an online application process that includes:Basic Information and Course Selection: You will provide basic personal details and select your preferred course(s) from the diverse offerings.Short Answer Questions: Be prepared to respond to a set of short-answer prompts as part of the application.Application Fee: A non-refundable $50 fee is required to submit your application.Supplementary MaterialsIn addition to the online application, you'll need to submit the following supplementary documents:Transcript and School ReportYou must provide your most recent unofficial transcript or report card (in English) showing your grades and your school's grading system.Teacher RecommendationYou will need a reference from a teacher, guidance counselor, coach, or school official.Optional Work Sample (Highly Recommended)Though not mandatory, submitting a sample of your work, such as a research paper, creative writing, artwork, or other projects, can strengthen your application.Course OfferingsThe NYT Summer Academy offers a diverse array of courses spanning various disciplines, including (but not limited to):Writing on Tech: Reporting on InnovationImmigration in New YorkFree Speech and Press Rights TodayOpinion WritingReporting on Diverse VoicesPolitical CommentaryCreative WritingEntrepreneurship and Social ImpactSports JournalismPhotojournalism as ArtWriting for FilmDIY FilmmakingIntroduction to Investigative JournalismReporting on Style and FashionClass sizes are kept small to ensure individual attention, and course availability is subject to change due to limited capacity.Tuition and Financial AidAttending the New York Times Academy comes with a cost, but options are available to make it more accessible. For the 2-week program, the tuition fee for day students who commute to classes is $5,560. If you prefer the residential option, which allows you to live in dorm-like facilities in the heart of New York City, the tuition is $6,845. Note that additional fees may apply on top of the tuition costs.However, like a similar New York Times internship, the academy understands that not all students may have the financial means to afford the program. That's why they offer limited financial assistance based on a combination of merit and need. If you require financial aid, you will need to submit a completed program application first, followed by a separate financial aid application. Decisions on financial aid are made after you've been accepted into the program. Additionally, you can apply to the Diverse Voices Scholarship Fund, which offers full-tuition scholarships to students from underrepresented, and economically disadvantaged backgrounds. The NYTimes summer program committee carefully reviews all applications, and all supplemental documents must be submitted for consideration.New York Times Summer Academy Application Tips and AdviceSecuring a coveted spot in the NYT summer program can be competitive, but you can increase your chances of getting accepted with the right approach. Here are five essential tips to help your application stand out:#1 Showcase Your Unique Interests and AchievementsWhile a solid academic record is certainly beneficial, the admissions committee is also looking for curious, critical thinkers who will make the most of this opportunity. Consider highlighting any independent research projects, publications, or extracurricular activities that demonstrate your dedication and intellectual curiosity.#2 Understand the Acceptance RatesThe New York Times Summer Academy acceptance rate can vary depending on the course you apply for, ranging from approximately 35% to 50%. Highly competitive courses, such as Creative Writing, may have lower acceptance rates, so making your application truly stand out is essential.#3 Seek RecommendationsThat Highlight Your Strengths Your teacher or counselor's recommendation letters can provide valuable insights into your academic abilities, work ethic, and personal qualities. Choose recommenders who can speak to your strengths and potential to succeed in the program.#4 Proofread and Polish Your ApplicationBefore submitting your application, be sure to carefully proofread all components, including your essay, short answers, and any supplemental materials. A well-presented and error-free application will demonstrate your attention to detail and commitment to the process.#5 Craft a Compelling EssayThe New York Times Summer Academy is a prestigious program, so it's no wonder the application process is highly competitive. Writing an essay to apply for the NYT summer program is optional, but it is your opportunity to set your application apart and showcase your genuine interest in the program. Having an academic paper published as a high school student may seem like an imposing goal. However, it's definitely achievable with proper guidance and mentorship. That's where Indigo Research comes in to assist you. At Indigo Research, you have the opportunity to participate in a one-on-one mentorship program, particularly for high school students. In this program, you will be mentored by top professors and Ph.D. teaching fellows. Your mentors will support you in developing an independent research project and publishing your findings in relevant top journals. You can reference your published article in your New York Times summer journalism program or other summer internship programs to make your essay stand out. For those who dream of exploring media, current events, law, and culture, The School of The New York Times Summer Academy offers an exceptional chance to live, learn, and create in New York City. This two-week program welcomes students to engage deeply with subjects that impact the world, under the guidance of New York Times journalists, editors, and industry experts. Each course is designed to take students beyond the classroom with unique, hands-on experiences that reveal what it's like to work and create in the heart of a global media center.Program Highlights:Diverse Course Options: Students can choose courses like Photojournalism as Art, where they explore narrative photography in a journalistic setting; Writing the Big City, which teaches investigative skills for producing ethical, compelling city-based stories; and A Million Lives in the Law, where students visit courthouses and law firms to experience the legal profession from all angles. Creative writing courses are also available for those who want to develop storytelling skills with a focus on contemporary works and literary critique.Real-World Immersion: Courses integrate visits to iconic locations like museums, newsrooms, art galleries, and historical sites, as well as more intimate spaces like artists' studios and boardrooms. Students develop practical skills in reporting, interviewing, and analyzing issues in journalism, law, and culture through these field experiences, making NYC itself an extension of their classroom.Housing and Dining: Students have the option to stay in dorm-style facilities, fostering a true campus-like experience in Manhattan. Dining halls offer options for a range of dietary needs, supporting students' health and comfort throughout their stay.Inclusivity and Support: The School offers need-based scholarships to support students from diverse backgrounds and provides payment plans to make the experience more affordable.Eligibility: Open to rising high school sophomores, juniors, seniors, and recent graduates aged 15-18, the program offers four different term options, allowing students to select one or more sessions that fit their interests and schedules.Whether students are exploring photojournalism, fashion media, investigative reporting, or creative writing, The School of The New York Times Summer Academy offers a rigorous, hands-on summer of learning and inspiration. Students can apply early for potential discounts and are encouraged to reach out for more information on admissions, scholarships, and specific course details.Ready to explore the heart of journalism and culture? Join a program that brings the world's stories to life! Explore the courses that will be offered this summer in New York City. To ensure students receive individual attention, class sizes for are kept small. As capacity for all courses is strictly limited, course availability is subject to change. We're so excited to meet you this summer in NYC. First and most importantly, you and your family should thoroughly review the Student & Family Handbook, which can be found here, where you will find all information, policies, and expectations of the pre-college program. It is important that you understand the content of the Student Handbook prior to your arrival in the program. Program Form & SchoolDoc The School utilizes SchoolDoc to securely collect pertinent student information including but not limited to emergency contacts, health forms, immunization records, dietary restrictions and accommodations. It is important that upon receipt, you promptly fill out, upload, and submit the required documents. Families and Students will receive an invite to SchoolDoc via email approximately 10 weeks prior to Move-In Day.R Room Assignments At The School, we believe in the value of communal living and the holistic benefit that having a roommate provides students in our precollege program. The roommate experience affords students the opportunity to grow and nurture life skills such as communication, tolerance, and compromise, among others. We encourage our students to embrace the roommate experience with an open mind and heart - roommates tend to lead to long, lasting friendships. Students are typically roomed according to their age or grade and self-identified gender listed in the Program Form at studentlife@nytedu.com. Note: Cash is not accepted on campus to purchase meals. Instructional Accommodations: The School wants every student to succeed and strives to create a safe and inclusive environment that can support each student's individual needs. We welcome requests for student instructional accommodations (academic, physical, assistive technologies or other), for students with disabilities, which may be required inside and/or outside of the classroom. We strongly encourage the disclosure of this information from students and their families. We ask that students and their families submit instructional accommodation requests, supporting documentation, and any other relevant information that may shape a student's experience at the program as early as possible. This will allow sufficient time to make any necessary arrangements, if appropriate, and ensure that all students have a fulfilling, enjoyable, and safe experience. All instructional accommodation requests and notifications should be submitted using the Program Form so that we may review the request; if needed, we will contact the student and their family for additional information. The School values and is sensitive to individual needs and will work to accommodate reasonable requests where possible and practical if you have already received an enrollment confirmation email, you may ignore this section. All admitted students must complete an Enrollment Form and submit a nonrefundable initial payment of $1500 per course to guarantee their place in Summer Academy. Students and parents will be sent an acceptance email containing a link to complete the form and select the course(s) they would like to attend. At the end of the form, the system will prompt you to submit your first payment and enroll. 2. Tuition Balance Payment If you have already submitted your full tuition payment, you may ignore this section. Payment Plans & Due Dates For those preferring to pay in installments after submitting the non-refundable initial payment of $1500, installments may be paid directly in the portal. Accepted payment methods include: Credit Cards & Debit Cards: American Express, Discover, MasterCard, Visa Local Bank Transfer Bank Payment: Checking Account or Saving Account Students who prefer to pay in installments can set up an automated payment plan at the time they enroll in their courses. Automated payment plans will charge a non-refundable initial payment of $1500 per term, followed by equal monthly installments through Spring 2025. If the initial payment of $1500 is not received by the designated date on your acceptance letter, the offer of admission will be revoked. If space becomes available after a student's application has been withdrawn, the student may contact the Admissions Office at info@nytedu.com. Refund Policy The first initial payment of $1500 for Summer Academy is non-refundable. To withdraw from the program for any reason before the start of the term, the student must notify Summer Academy in writing via email, and, depending on the date of withdrawal, a portion of the tuition and fees previously paid may be refunded. No refunds will be given for early departures from a program, once it is underway, whether voluntary or otherwise. Date of receipt of written cancellation notification Amount of tuition, materials and fees refunded* Before February 1 100% February 2 - March 1 60% March 2 - April 15 30% After April 15 0 % *The first initial payment of $1500 and all processing fees are not eligible for refund. As a reminder, here are the dates for each term: Term 1: June 8- June 20 Term 2: June 22 - July 4 Term 3: July 6 - July 18 Term 4: July 20 - August 1 Classes are held in academic facilities on Fordham University's Lincoln Center campus. Overflow classrooms may be added at venues near campus or at select off-site locations determined by the Instructor. Classes typically run for three hours in the morning and three hours in the afternoon, with a one-hour break for lunch, the first classes begin at 8:30 a.m. with the last classes concluding at 4:30 p.m. daily. Day students are expected to stay with their class until the end of the afternoon session. Day students may elect to participate in evening activities and/or remain on campus until curfew at 9:30 p.m. Sunday to Thursday and 10:00 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Students will participate in site visits to various locations across New York City during class time to supplement coursework. Lead instructors, instructors and/or chaperones will accompany students on site visits. In addition to the classroom activities, students are invited to participate in daily co-curricular activities that will support their in-class learning and encourage students to better get to know one another and build relationships. Instead, upon approval of completion of the program, students will receive a letter of evaluation from their faculty in their Canvas account and a digital certificate of completion. Please note that students must have all balances paid in full, including any fees for lost/unreturned room keys, etc. before receiving these evaluations and certificates. All students, faculty and staff are expected to follow all campus and The School of The New York Times' safety policies and procedures. Failure to comply will result in being restricted from campus. These policies and procedures are subject to change and may be updated from time to time in accordance with the evolving nature of the COVID-19 pandemic and any changes in laws, regulations, and public health guidance issued by the CDC, New York State, or New York City. Do not hesitate to reach out to studentlife@nytedu.com with questions about the campus as it applies to your health and safety. The Health and Wellness Policy and Procedures in its entirety can be found in your Student Handbook. Required Vaccinations for the Program All students must provide health information including proof of immunization for Measles, Mumps, Rubella (MMR), Meningitis in the Program Form after enrollment. The School of The New York Times students are not required to submit proof of COVID-19 vaccination. However, we strongly recommend that students follow CDC guidelines for COVID-19 which recommend that everyone be up to date with COVID-19 vaccines including booster doses. We reserve the right to require any vaccinations as recommended by the Center for Disease Control, Food and Drug Administration, The World Health Organization, New York State or City agencies, and the program's accommodation provider, as deemed necessary for the prevention and control of any outbreak of communicable, infectious diseases. Medical Exemptions Exemptions to certain requirements for medical reasons may be granted in limited circumstances and will be evaluated on a case-by-case basis. Exemptions might be requested for a medical condition that contraindicates a student from: receiving other vaccinations being able to share a room with other students (requiring a solo room if space permits) other relevant conditions Exemption requests must be received at least 2 weeks prior to the start of term. The School will notify students by email if the exemption request has been accepted or rejected. In the case of an accepted medical exemption request, the student must follow all current School guidelines contained within this policy. To request a medical exemption, the student must submit a letter signed by a certified/licensed medical provider describing the student's medical condition. The letter must certify to the following: The student is the patient of the medical provider. The medical provider has reviewed the student's medical history. The student has a medical condition that contraindicates a student from one or more of the above listed circumstances The letter must also provide contact information for the medical provider (name, address, telephone and email). The letter must be sent by email to exemptions@nytedu.com. Fordham University's Lincoln Center Campus is accessible from all three major airports in the New York metropolitan area: John F. Kennedy International (JFK), LaGuardia (LGA) and Newark Liberty International Airport (EWR). Taxi service and ride sharing services (such as Uber Teen) are available from all airports. Additional information about airport transportation and other forms of public transportation is available online through The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey website. The A, B, C, D and 1 subway trains all stop at 59th Street/Columbus Circle. The campus is located one block west. You may wish to view a subway map or a bus map available online through The MTA website. Please remember to check policies for unaccompanied minors when making travel and transportation arrangements. This information is provided for informational purposes only. The School does not endorse and is not affiliated or associated with any transportation company or agency. Check-in occurs at Fordham University's Lincoln Center Campus during the afternoon on the first Sunday of each term. Students should use the 62nd Street entrance (between Amsterdam Avenue & Columbus Avenue in Manhattan) to access McKeon Hall (150 West 62nd Street, New York, NY 10023). Residential students will check-in from 1 p.m. - 4 p.m. Times may be staggered, so please check your arrival confirmation email to be sent a few days before Orientation Day. Please note that we cannot accept students on campus or store luggage before their designated arrival time. Day students should arrive at McKeon Hall at 3 p.m. for official program check-in. Times subject to change. Please note, in adherence with Fordham guidelines, parents/guardians may not escort their students to their rooms upon check-in. Summer Academy students may depart the program on the last Friday of the term after the conclusion of the closing ceremony (approximately 11 a.m.), however, parents/guardians should allow extra time when booking flights and travel in the event their student is late moving out. Students must vacate their dorm rooms/depart from campus by 1 p.m. at the latest. Students must officially check out and return their ID and room keys to staff located on each floor prior to departure; failure to do so will result in parents/guardians being billed for unreturned items. Arrival and departure days and times are the start and end of the program term. We will not have housing or staff available outside of the specified term dates and times. The School does not monitor student travel after students have checked out of the program nor is The School available to solve travel-related problems such as cancelled or delayed flights. Families should consider how to manage travel issues of unaccompanied minors and be aware that unaccompanied children under 18 are unable to book or check into a hotel room. Orientation All students (day and residential) are expected to attend the mandatory Orientation starting at 5 p.m. as well as mandatory Living and Learning Community (LLC) meetings running from 6 p.m. - 7:30 p.m. on the first day of the term (times subject to change). All students will be divided into their Living and Learning Communities (LLCs) groups on Orientation Day. Pre-Orientation for Families: Parents are welcome to participate in a virtual pre-orientation for students and families two weeks prior to move-in day. This pre-orientation will outline details of the program including technology demonstrations and Q&A as well as policies, academic expectations, co-curricular events and more. See below for a schedule of important dates for each term. Closing Ceremony The closing ceremony will take place on the morning of the last Friday of the term, prior to check-out. Please plan your travel plans accordingly to accommodate for the closing ceremony. More information will be released closer to the start of the program. Due to space availability, parents/guardians may not attend the closing ceremony in person, however a link will be provided for parents/guardians to attend online. Our co-curricular and residential life activities take place daily after dinner, usually beginning at 6pm and consisting of carefully curated programming ranging from small group local neighborhood activities to program-wide outings. Events will focus on arts, culture or unique New York experiences. These activities are open to both residential and day students and will be supervised by Summer Academy staff. Saturdays will be designated as Exploration Days, giving students and their peers an opportunity to explore New York City and all it has to offer on their own. View a sample schedule at this link. Please download a sample list of co-curricular activities and events here. NYC Summer Academy plans to use dorms and classrooms at Fordham University's Lincoln Center Campus. All classes and official program activities are chaperoned by our instructors and program staff. Security as well as student life staff are present in the residential hall 24/7 for the duration of the program. Please review our Protection of Minors Policy found in the Student Handbook. During free time, students are able to travel around NYC with another student by using our checkout system. Students must complete a regular leave request through Orah indicating their destination, name of their "buddy" and expected return time. Students then proceed to the Welcome Desk to have their request approved and officially check-out. All students are expected to return to campus prior to campus curfew at 9:30pm Sunday to Thursday and 10:00 p.m. Friday and Saturday. We recommend that students and parents/guardians discuss safety and guidelines prior to their arrival at Summer Academy. Parents should feel comfortable allowing their students to move unsupervised throughout New York City during their time off. Students are responsible for their own travel expenses during the program, including travel on New York City public transit and MetroCard costs, and will need to do so prior to checking into the program. 2 ways to obtain travel passes are: a. Tap to pay on mobile phone (requires credit card upload onto their phones) (Recommended) b. Purchase a MetroCard on site in any subway station prior to arrival Students should budget approximately $6 per round trip for all excursions taken for the entirety of the two-week term. Additional costs need to be accounted for should they wish to attend additional optional activities that require travel outside of the campus boundary. Note: Students should expect to walk substantially on academic site visits as well as during co-curricular activities daily throughout the program. Please plan accordingly by wearing comfortable clothes and shoes, bringing a refillable water bottle and getting plenty of rest. Please check your email regularly for program communications that are distributed prior to the start of the program as well as throughout the program term. We share important information about next steps and what you need to know prior to the start of the program and during the program. During the program: A dedicated phone line is provided all to students and families prior to move-in day which connects to program staff at the Welcome Desk, the program communication center throughout the duration of the term and attends to student and parent/guardian queries. The School will primarily communicate with parents through email at studentlife@nytedu.com. All students will be given an Emergency Phone Number on the day of their arrival. While they will have access to our team at any time, this number allows students to reach us in case of emergencies. Communication Platforms: Parents and guardians must use Orah to request/approve special leaves or extended excused absences. Instructions for using Orah will be sent to all parents prior to the start of the program. Orah (students and parents/guardians): Orah is an app that The School of The New York Times uses to track student whereabouts, medical alerts, student information, and other important notes about student care. Any time students leave campus they must request the leave through Orah and The School of The New York Times staff will approve/deny the request. Canvas (students only): Canvas is the Learning Management System used by The School of The New York Times faculty to communicate academic needs and assignments with students, and by program staff to communicate all aspects of the program for the term duration from policies to daily schedule of events. Students are encouraged to check their Canvas accounts multiple times throughout the day. Pronto (students only): The program and/or program staff will not request personal contact numbers from students to communicate throughout the program term. Instead, we employ the Pronto app, an education-based communication platform, to directly message students. Please Note: Some students might feel homesick at the start of the program, and they may need a few days to adjust to the new surroundings and routines. Residential staff will be especially attentive to the needs of students at the start of the program. Once settled in, students typically become fully engaged in the program and calls home may become less frequent. We suggest establishing reasonable communication expectations between parent/guardian(s) and students before the start of the program. Residential students may use their own personal cell phones during the program at times that do not interfere with the courses or activities. The School does not provide a phone for students to receive calls. Urgent Matters Help Line for Parents and Guardians: A dedicated phone line is available for parents and families with urgent matters. This line goes to the team on campus. To ensure issues are attended to promptly, this number should only be used for urgent matters. Please consider the seriousness of your enquiry before using this number. Non-urgent queries submitted to this Help Line will be redirected to our team via email for appropriate follow-up during regular business hours. You may contact us at studentlife@nytedu.com. Emergency Number for Students: All students will be given the Emergency Phone Number on the day of their arrival. While they will have access to our team at any time, this number allows students to reach us in case of emergencies. Welcome Desk: studentlife@nytedu.com The Welcome Desk attends to student and parent/guardian queries. The School will primarily communicate with parents through email. What to Bring: Clothing: light and cool casual summer clothing, jacket or sweatshirt, raincoat, swimsuit, sandals, comfortable walking shoes, a set of nicer, professional clothes (for more semi-formal events) Weather gear: sunscreen, sunglasses, umbrella, reusable water bottle Academic supplies: laptop, notebook, pen Camera and/or journal/diary Personal electronics: U.S. compatible cell phone and plan, hair dryer, headphones, chargers, adapters (if international) Personal items: toiletries, hangers, towel, etc. Laundry bag Photo ID (e.g., government issued ID, official school ID, or copy of passport) Copy of health insurance card (front and back) Spending money (for souvenirs and incidentals) *Students should bring clothing that is smart casual and appropriate for class site visits to offices and workspaces (comfortable, but presentable). Formal and/or semi-formal wear is not necessary for Summer Academy (dress clothes, dresses/gowns, suits and ties, dress shoes, sports jackets, etc.). Also, students will be doing a great deal of walking throughout their day, so please remember comfortable shoes and a reusable water bottle. What NOT to Bring: Students may not bring flammable materials, including but not limited to candles, incense, matches, lighters, electronic cigarette//UUL products, explosive devices, or fireworks. Students who violate this policy will be subject to immediate dismissal. Students are not allowed to bring weapons of any kind, including but not limited to knives, pepper spray, firearms, paintball or Nerf guns, laser pointers, or other dangerous items. Students who violate this policy will be subject to immediate dismissal. Students are not allowed to use or possess tobacco products, alcoholic beverages, or unauthorized drugs or medication. Students who violate this policy will be subject to immediate dismissal. Students are not allowed to have a car, skateboard, skates, or a bicycle on campus. Students may not bring pets. Students may not bring cooking or kitchen appliances, such as refrigerators, microwaves or toaster ovens, or hot plates. Students may not bring drones or any other motorized objects. We recommend that students not bring any valuables; The School takes no responsibility for lost or stolen items. Bedding is provided, so students need not bring sheets, pillows, or blankets. Dress Code The School expects all students to dress in a way that is appropriate for an academic environment. Students will frequently be interacting with professionals and in professional environments and should dress as such. Basic Principle: Certain body parts (genitals, buttocks, breasts, and nipples) must be covered at all times by opaque clothing. Students must wear: A full-length shirt which covers the entire midriff Pants/jeans or the equivalent (skirt, leggings, a dress or shorts) Shoes, sneakers, sandals, flip-flops Students cannot wear: Clothing or accessories with violent language or imagery Clothing or accessories with language depicting drugs or alcohol or any illegal activity Clothing or accessories that creates a hostile or intimidating environment Swimsuits Accessories that could be dangerous or used as a weapon The School of The New York Times aims to create a respectful, inclusive and student-focused community with the goal of creating a positive learning environment for students enrolled in its programs. With that aim in mind, School staff are dedicated to working closely with families to ensure that all questions and concerns are answered in a prompt and complete manner. We encourage community members to review our Community Standards and Guidelines, in the Student and Family Handbook, which aim to ensure that our public-facing social media channels are inclusive and inviting for everyone. Want to keep up on all the latest updates from The School of The New York Times? Follow us on social media. We look forward to providing you with a truly rewarding learning experience this summer. We know you will have questions as the program approaches. You are likely to find the answers on our comprehensive FAQ page. For all other questions related to the student experience, please feel free to contact us at studentlife@nytedu.com. To ensure students receive individual attention, class sizes for Summer Academy are kept small. As capacity for all courses is strictly limited, course availability is subject to change.
