Tony Britten est un compositeur britannique renommé pour avoir créé l'hymne de la Ligue des champions de l'UEFA. Il a commencé sa carrière au théâtre en tant que directeur musical, notamment avec Cameron Mackintosh pour des comédies musicales telles que Godspell et Oliver !. Britten a ensuite travaillé à la National Theatre comme arrangeur et directeur musical avant de passer au cinéma et à la télévision comme producteur chargé. Il a également collaboré avec Clive Donner. L'hymne de la Ligue des champions est diffusé avant chaque match dans les stades et sur les programmes télévisés dédiés à la compétition. En 1992, l'UEFA a confié à Tony Britten la tâche de composer un hymne pour la Ligue des champions. Il a choisi de reprendre le morceau "Zadok the Priest" de Georg Friedrich Haendel, un hymne du couronnement du roi Georges II en 1727. La version officielle est interprétée par l'Orchestre philharmonique royal et les chants sont réalisés par le chœur de St Martin-in-the-Fields dans trois langues : anglais, français et allemand. L'hymne complet dure environ trois minutes et contient deux courts couplets et un chœur. Il a été joué pour la première fois simultanément dans quatre stades le 25 novembre 1992, à l'occasion des rencontres de phases de groupe de la Ligue des champions 1992-1993. Depuis 2006, les programmes télévisés ont adopté une version remaniée de l'hymne. There are four comments on a MuseScore score with the ID 5459826.
